

Elodea densa is an aquatic plant widely used in biology for observation of plant cells substage lamps produce both heat and light, and after 2 to 3 minutes students will begin to observe cyclosis. If your microscopes have fluorescent or LED lamps, these produce very little heat and often will